When Next Door had to close temporarily in March because of the COVID-19 pandemic, students like Kai, Kayley and Adriel McFarlane, Jr., yearned to go back intensely. “There were days where we had to drive past the school just to show the kids the building because they didn’t understand why all of the sudden something that was so important to them was taken away,” Kamonti McFarlane said.

Kamonti and her husband, Adriel, Sr., said Next Door stayed close with weekly phone calls from their children’s teachers and family advocates. “We were in the house together for a long period of time, and just having them check in with us, ask us if there was anything we needed and talking us through it — it helped a lot,” Kamonti said.

The couple says teachers and family advocates provided an online learning platform with age-appropriate lessons for each child and classroom portals with activities to do at home, recorded story time and links to share student work. “The continuous learning was still there for them. There were still opportunities for them to grow,” Adriel, Sr., said.

Kai, Kayley and Adriel, Jr., have been growing at Next Door since their arrival in the fall of 2017. By age two, Kai and Kayley knew most of their colors and shapes, could count to ten and even recognize feelings. Early on, Adriel, Jr., developed critical thinking skills through lots of back-and-forth conversation with his teachers. One of his teachers even helped him secure a scholarship to advance his reading through a program at University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee. “From the start, Next Door has helped our family grow in so many different ways — and not only academically but just keeping families together and making sure we have resources that are needed,” Kamonti said.

She and her husband say the family support in 2020 included parent Zoom meetings, where they learned about topics like social-emotional learning. Through free distribution events, they received healthy meals and snacks, backpacks with educational supplies and recreational items like jump ropes and sidewalk chalk.

One of the biggest lessons from 2020 for Kamonti and Adriel, Sr., came from witnessing just how much their children love Next Door. “You can now start to see the invaluable nature of the relationships that they have with their friends, the relationships that they have with their teachers and how the environment at school is instrumental in their upbringing. You can now see the true value and that’s the biggest thing that I’ve taken away during this time of the pandemic,” Adriel, Sr., said.

Dear Friends,

We write this letter with an enormous sense of pride and gratitude to the Next Door community. Our family of teachers, support staff, board directors, donors, volunteers and community partners all helped us carry out Next Door’s critical early childhood education and family support services during an unprecedented and challenging year. We thank you for your hard work, perseverance and generosity.

With your support, we served our children and families with weekly check-ins, virtual learning opportunities, basic needs and more during our spring closure. We executed a careful, phased-in reopening for the rest of the year with in-person and virtual learning options. On-site, we implemented precautions to keep everyone as safe as possible. Our virtual learning featured daily interaction with teachers, online curriculum programs and support with technology and school supplies.

We moved forward in several other ways including launching a Diversity, Equity and Inclusion initiative, earning a spot on the 2020 “Best Places to Work” by the Milwaukee Business Journal, hosting a Virtual Walk for Children, and renovating our 29th Street campus with bright, interactive spaces for student learning and parent engagement.

Spring Closure

On March 16th, we suspended our on-site programming because of the COVID-19 health crisis in our community. Following the state-wide Safer at Home order, we had to quickly navigate unchartered territory and devise a plan to support nearly 1,400 children and families across our center-based, home visitation and partnership programming.

Our priorities centered on meeting our families’ basic needs at home while continuing to educate and engage their children during a critical period of brain development. We also worked hard to keep our staff connected and supported during this difficult period. Below is a closer look at our efforts.

Supporting our Families
- 4,000+ breakfast/lunch meals distributed through pick-up and home delivery
- 400+ packages of diapers and wipes distributed through pick-up and home delivery
- 2,100+ free books distributed through pick-up and home delivery
- Weekly check-ins from Next Door Family Advocates and Parent Educators
- Phone hotline for emergency needs
- Phone hotline with consultation for handling challenging behaviors from children

Supporting Student Education
- Connected classrooms through an online portal to post lessons, activities and share student work
- Held virtual classroom meetings for story time and other instruction
- Offered recorded video demonstrations by teachers for remote learning projects
- Safely delivered supplies and activities to students’ homes
- Distributed 1,100 backpacks with educational supplies

Supporting our Staff
- Maintained full staffing levels during this period
- Introduced a Microsoft Office suite to carry out remote work, maintain interdepartmental communications and share resources
- Held all-staff Zoom meetings to share organizational updates
- Offered virtual mindfulness and yoga sessions
- Held weekly drawings for prizes safely delivered to the winners’ homes
- Mailed staff motivational yard signs, masks and encouraging notes

Next Door Heroes

We want to thank the entire Next Door team for their extraordinary work, flexibility and innovation during 2020. In our Next Door Heroes series, we’re celebrating some of the people across the agency who helped keep our students, families and employees safe and connected during a difficult year.

Brooke Small
Early Start Teacher

Brooke was part of the first group of teachers to return for Next Door’s phased-in reopening in June. She introduced safety measures through activities like hand-tracing and designing clean and dirty hands to show the difference. Working with two-year-old students, she had one main priority for her teaching. “When it comes to two-year-olds, it’s all based on structured routine and implementing it every day. It seems to get the kids involved and ready.” By the end of the year, Brooke noticed gains in her students’ conversation, colors, counting and social-emotional learning.

Khalilah Lewis
Head Start Teacher

Khalilah helped her three-year-old students transition back to the classroom by encouraging discussion about COVID-19 and sharing experiences. She focused on intentional, repetitive teaching for new safety measures and said students complied well, even speaking up if they saw something unsafe. Her assessments showed the pandemic didn’t impact learning. The children continued to grow with a constant message of assurance from her. “This is a place where you can be safe; this is the place where you come to learn, this is the place where we come to have fun and be together — and that has not changed.”

Kiley Kennedy
K4 Teacher

Kiley returned to classroom teaching in the fall aiming to maintain a traditional student experience as much as possible. “I really focused on keeping to the units and trying to make school as normal as possible for the children.” While promoting safety throughout her classroom, Kiley engaged her students in learning experiences covering topics like trees, buildings and pets. She also engaged parents by displaying their children’s work in a window near the outside pick-up area for children during the pandemic. Kiley reported particular gains for her students in core areas like spelling their names and rhyming.

Carmen Parker
K5 Teacher

Carmen focused on two main priorities while teaching on-site during the pandemic. “It was just a lot of structure and routine, and then expressing the importance of keeping each other safe so we can stay safe at school and when we’re not at school.” She promoted safety through daily reminders, books and experiments. She also worked closely with students showing academic regression with one-on-one support and offered parents resources to help at home. Carmen reported improvements with these students, and observed other children building more confidence and social skills by being back in the classroom.
Summer Reopening

Knowing we had an obligation to provide our critical early childhood education programs to children who need them, we began a slow, multi-phase reopening process for Next Door in June. We welcomed back a select number of our youngest learners, ages birth to three, at both of our locations. We also launched a summer school program to prepare students entering K5 for the new school year.

Reopening came with extensive planning and consultation with local, state and federal organizations — and our staff — to ensure we were providing a safe environment for our children and employees.

Safety Precautions
- Temperature checks
- Daily COVID-19 health screening
- On-site health services team for children with symptoms
- Masks required for staff/children ages 3+
- Hands-free sanitizer stations
- Increased cleaning and sanitizing procedures
- Classroom practices to promote social distancing
- COVID-19 health education for students
- No intermingling of classrooms
- Limiting visitors
- Parent drop-off/pick-up outside the building

Family Survey
In June, Next Door conducted a survey of our parents/guardians. The survey included questions about their overall experience at Next Door and how they felt about the virtual learning during our time away from school in the spring.

Overall Experience at Next Door
- 100% of families see Next Door as a trusted source of information.
- 98% of families feel that they are an equal partner in their children’s education.
- 98% of families feel that communicating with their child’s teacher, family advocate and parent educator is open and easy.

Spring Virtual Learning
- 98% of families felt confident in their ability to support their child’s learning at home.
- 90% of families felt that the teacher/parent educator communication was helpful in their child’s learning.
- 93% of families felt that their family advocate/parent educator was supportive in providing resources for their family.

Next Door Heroes

Tenishia Ragsdale
Head Start Virtual Teacher

Ms. Tenishia led a three-year-old class daily in morning and afternoon Zoom sessions for Next Door's virtual learning option for families. If a family missed a class, she offered separate sessions for them. She focused on physical activities, back-and-forth conversation and teaching aids like PowerPoint presentations and flannel board stories. Some of her greatest success came during “show and tell” when students presented their work of the day. “The children were very excited about that part of the day and very interested in what their friends had done. They were asking, “What did you do? What did you find?”

LaJuana Brandon-Thompson
Early Head Start Virtual Teacher

LaJuana taught some of Next Door’s youngest learners — ages 1 and 2 — in virtual sessions every day. They met one-on-one over Zoom with the child’s parent and often started singing a song followed by an activity. She sent materials to students’ homes that they could use together like books, paint and lacing beads. She supplemented her teaching with an online curriculum platform to keep up student engagement.

As a virtual teacher, she participated in monthly reflective practice with her colleagues. “We just talked about what’s working and what’s not and fed off each other and tried to encourage one another. It was very helpful.”

Natasha Fair
Parent Educator

Natasha led weekly virtual visits with the families she serves in Next Door’s home-based early childhood education program. She spent time reading stories to children, singing songs and promoting self-expression through art. She worked with parents on ways to support their child’s education and encouraged use of common household items to engage them. Natasha safely delivered food, diapers and wipes to families and referred them to community resources for housing, winter coats, holiday baskets, car seats and more.

She said consistency and flexibility were key through it all. “It’s just meeting that parent where they are and doing my best to serve them.”

Sana Boateng
Parent Educator

Sana led weekly virtual visits with the families she serves in Next Door’s prenatal services program. She helped expectant mothers navigate the different phases of pregnancy and learn about parenting with the latest education. “The families really like that because they’re learning different techniques. They are being taught things they didn’t know before, so they’re more empowered as a parent.” Sana provided community resources for doula services, doctors, baby supplies, food, housing, and mental health support. Some of the mothers gave birth this year and Sana stayed close, working with them on routine mother/child interactions like feeding and reading.

Programming

Next Door student Michael participated in a summer school program to get ready for K5. The program included health education about the importance of wearing masks and practicing safe hygiene habits.

A ‘Ni and Alijah practice the drums during music time with Ms. Shantinea.
To plan a safe and effective new school year, the Next Door team spent the summer developing a combination of in-person and virtual learning options for families across all of our programming. The plan incorporated input from employee work groups, family surveys and local, state and national health experts.

We based our plan on the following guiding principles:

• Be careful stewards of our funding sources
• Innovate and be flexible
• Ensure that children’s and families’ needs are met
• Focus on responsive, high quality learning experiences to prepare children for success in school
• Ensure safety and wellness of children and staff
• Maintain and support staff to the extent possible and practicable
• Ensure safety and wellness of children and staff
• Focus on responsive, high-quality learning experiences to prepare children for success in school
• Ensure that children’s and families’ needs are met
• Innovate and be flexible
• Be careful stewards of our funding sources

Next Door Heroes

Shyrese Holmes
Family Advocate

Shyrese works to ensure Next Door families have what they need to succeed. During this challenging year, she checked in with parents at least once a week with phone calls, texts and video chats. She guided them to community resources for housing, employment, emergency needs and mental health support. She even met safely with a grandmother to help her navigate online paperwork for a special education plan for her granddaughter. She said regular communication was key and brought her families much comfort. “I always tell parents, ‘I’m here to help you. I’m here to support you. I want the best for you.’”

Linda Behlke
Instructional Coach

Linda spent 2020 supporting early childhood education teachers in the community through Next Door’s Child Care Partnership (CCP) program. She worked with teachers virtually at YMCA of Metropolitan Milwaukee, one of Next Door’s nine CCP partners. She offered feedback through live observation and coached teachers on classroom management strategies, teaching practices, lesson plan development and student assessment skills. She also engaged them in reflective practice and overall, witnessed remarkable progress. “They jumped right into this new format of working together virtually and they are flourishing.”

Kayla Tillisch
Special Education Teacher

Kayla spent 2020 working with students on-site and virtually to help them overcome communication, emotional and academic challenges. She focused on building strong relationships, consistency, high engagement and frequent collaboration with teachers. One engagement included sending children letter stencils and paint for virtual activities together. One of her favorite outcomes was with a virtual student struggling to express herself. “Her personality is really showing. She’s so comfortable and able to express herself very well even with a virtual barrier. If anything, it has actually enhanced her own personal way of learning.”

Kate Campbell
Positive Behavior Intervention Specialist

Kate works with Next Door teachers on developing effective strategies to deescalate challenging student behaviors in the classroom. In 2020, she engaged in more professional development to support teachers and worked with them on a new model gathering more data to get to the root of the child’s misbehavior. She encouraged teachers to try strategies like Zones of Regulations to help children identify emotions and ways to calm down. From her perspective, teachers worked harder than ever this year. “The commitment from the teachers to try everything they can do has been really amazing to watch.”
Supporting Mental Health

Next Door’s mental health team took on a significant role this year with rising traumatic stress events stemming from the COVID-19 health crisis. Factors like social isolation at home, disrupted routines and financial struggles exacerbated existing emotional issues and created new challenges for children and parents. Our mental health specialists utilized a trauma-informed model to offer support to children and parents in the three primary areas below.

Positive Behavioral Support Team (PBST)
This team of intervention specialists work closely with teachers and parents to evaluate a variety of behavioral issues with children in the classroom and develop effective strategies to address them. The ultimate goal is to have the children continue learning with their teachers and peers without disruption.
- Offered a hotline for parents with questions/concerns during the Safer at Home period
- Conducted mental health screenings by phone and made referrals to community resources
- Provided activities to help keep stress levels down
- Supported several children struggling with the transition back to school in the fall through classroom observation, one-on-one intervention and community resources
- Incorporated ideas like Zones of Regulation to help children visually identify and understand emotions and proper ways to handle them
- Promoted structured routines, a loving and safe school environment, rewards for good behavior and choices to handle difficult feelings and tasks
- Worked with parents on education to reinforce positive behaviors at home

Parent Support Group
- A new program in 2020 for parents with children facing mental health challenges
- Monthly sessions over Zoom with Next Door’s Mental Health Supervisor as a moderator
- A safe space for parents to come together, share what they’re going through and offer ideas and support for one another

Community Resources
- Aurora Family Service is a long-time Next Door partner offering mental health counseling for children and families. Next Door made referrals to this program for students coping with trauma-related behavioral issues.
- The Next Step Clinic is a new community resource based at Next Door offering high quality mental health and developmental support services for underserved Milwaukee families. The clinic supported Next Door families with autism-related concerns and Parent-Child Interaction Therapy. The clinic transitioned to an online model in April 2020 and will be using it into the fall of 2020.
- Conducted mental health screenings by phone and conducted new parent support groups during the Safer at Home period
- Conducted mental health screenings by phone and created new challenges for children and parents. Our mental health specialists utilized a trauma-informed model to offer support to children and parents in the three primary areas below.

Next Door Heroes

Carolyn Porter
Director of Operations
Carolyn helped ensure Next Door had precautions in place to keep students and staff as safe as possible in the buildings during the pandemic. She ordered personal protective equipment including over 10,000 pairs of gloves, more than 25,000 face masks and loads of hand sanitizer. Also on her list were new air purifiers, hands-free water stations and a special COVID-19 cleaning solution for the buildings. She embraced these new challenges of 2020. “I love being able to solve problems. Being able to tackle those issues and find ways to make people’s ability to work better during this time is really satisfying to me.”

Marie Parker
Nutrition Services
Marie said 2020 allowed her to expand her role and help students and staff eat well during a challenging time. She introduced new seasonal menus for the children with more fresh fruit and vegetables and whole grain-rich items. She started outreach to parents with picky eaters and developed a nutrition program for classrooms to make their daily snacks. Through an employee social network, Marie offered recipes for staff and co-authored a monthly newsletter. “For me, job satisfaction went way up because I’m able to do these things. I feel my work here is more meaningful than any job I’ve ever had.”

Darlene Grant
KEEP Committee
Darlene helped make 2020 more fun at Next Door! She works with a team of staff members on programs to boost employee morale on Next Door’s KEEP (Keep Employees Engaged as Partners) Committee. This year, Darlene co-hosted several engaging contests during virtual all-staff meetings featuring trivia, mask decorating and ugly holiday sweaters. More positive engagement came through an employee social network, a book club and spirit days.

“I love putting a smile on employees’ faces and am honored to be a part of a committee that helps to build morale and has the support of leadership to keep employees engaged.”

Jesse Weathersby
Director of Information Technology
Jesse led a team of IT Specialists to ensure Next Door staff and families stayed well-connected during the pandemic. They prepared approximately 650 iPads and Chromebooks for families in our virtual learning program and offered parents tutorials and technical assistance. They equipped staff with approximately 200 laptops, ran training on virtual platforms to maintain department and agency-wide communication and even offered technical support for Internet issues at home. “My team really stepped up and went that extra mile. If we knew some staff needed support after hours, we made sure we adjusted our schedule so we could provide it.”
Next Door’s Home-Based Program

Realizing not all families wish to come to our centers for services, Next Door offers a Home-Based Visitation program with prenatal services and early childhood education to meet families where they are. Our Parent Educators work with more than 160 families and equip them with critical guidance and resources to help build bright futures for their families.

We started 2020 operating this program in-person and later transitioned to virtual sessions with families when COVID-19 hit. Our Parent Educators offered their traditional support services along with additional assistance to help families during the pandemic.

Serving Expectant Mothers
- Support throughout pregnancy, delivery and transition to parenthood
- Weekly visits from Parent Educators
- Guidance on building strong families and relationships with children
- Breastfeeding support and safe sleeping education
- Connections to doctors, doula and mental health services
- Community resources like housing, employment, food and baby supplies
- Opportunities to connect and socialize with other expectant mothers
- Safe home deliveries of food, diapers, wipes and holiday gifts during COVID-19

Serving Families
- Weekly visits from Parent Educators
- Early childhood education in English, Spanish, Hmong, Burmese and Karen
- Guidance for parents to teach children at home
- Medical/dental support to ensure up-to-date child screenings
- Support for students with special needs
- Community resources like housing, employment, food and clothing
- Family socialization events
- Safe home deliveries of food, diapers, wipes, educational supplies and holiday gifts during COVID-19

Investing in Next Door Staff

One of our strategic goals for Next Door is to be an employer of choice among nonprofit organizations in Milwaukee. During our 2019-2020 fiscal year, we implemented nearly 60 opportunities for employees to enjoy new benefits, professional development, feedback sessions, wellness programming, staff appreciation events and more.

- No increase in employee healthcare premiums
- Prepaid tuition assistance
- Loans for unexpected life costs
- More bereavement days off
- Increased minimum wage to $15
- Free weekly health screenings offered by Medical College of Wisconsin
- Staff appreciation gift cards/treats
- COVID-19 special health insurance enrollment period
- Juneteenth Day Holiday added
- Yammer social media network
- Monthly virtual all-staff meetings
- “Ask Us Anything” email to leadership
- Aspiring Leaders program launched

The Milwaukee Business Journal selected Next Door as one of its 2020 “Best Places to Work.” This program honors companies and organizations based on high rankings from employee surveys. Next Door earned its recognition in the Extra-Large Category (200 or more employees) and was the only nonprofit organization in the group.
As part of Next Door’s outreach into the community, the agency leads a federal grant program working to increase access to high quality early childhood education for Milwaukee families. The grant program started in 2015 featuring an Early Head Start Child Care Partnership (CCP). Today, CCP spans nine early childhood organizations with 11 sites across Milwaukee County.

Next Door deploys a team of instructional coaches at each site, offering teachers mentorship and professional development to help raise the quality of learning and care in their classroom. The CCP program also provides Next Door Family Advocates who work closely with families to ensure they have access to important community resources like medical and dental screenings.

In the 2019-2020 school year, the partnership program expanded to include older Head Start children (ages 3-5). Overall, this program allows Next Door to directly reach 330 children across 60 classrooms and indirectly impact 1,400 additional children at the partner sites.

CCP Family Success

For four years, Shapayl Parker’s family attended COA Youth and Family Centers – one of Next Door’s 11 CCP sites. Her son Brandon started there at just six weeks old and the learning started right away.

“I can remember when he was just like a little baby learning how to crawl, (the teacher) would always sit on the ground with him with a book in front of him and he would be trying to turn the page,” Shapayl said.

Overtime, Shapayl said Brandon improved his communication skills and became more outgoing and in control of his emotions. She said teachers helped her daughter Kamarra boost her self-confidence. Shapayl grew, too, thanks to Next Door family advocates who support families at the partner sites.

“She pushed me to advocate for my kids and to stand up for what I believe in,” Shapayl said.

One of the ways Shapayl became a stronger parent is by joining Next Door’s Policy Council - a Head Start governing body of parents who vote on Next Door business and promote family engagement. In 2020, Shapayl served as council president and a parent representative on Next Door’s Board of Directors.

“I have to be thankful from where I came from and CCP is where I came from. I wouldn’t be where I am if I didn’t have that experience,”

In 2020, Next Door collaborated with more than 30 local and national partners to offer valuable resources that enhance the high quality early childhood education experience for our children and families. Below are a few highlights.

Edurcare Learning Network

In 2020, Next Door marked 15 years as part of the Educare Learning Network. The network of 25 schools nationwide offers a best practice, research-driven model for high quality early childhood education for children from under-resourced families. Since opening the Educare Milwaukee school in 2005, we have spread the Educare model across our entire early childhood programming. The Buffett Early Childhood Fund and Start Early are two principal partners of this network.

414 Fellowship

Next Door works with 30 Marquette University students in the 414 Fellowship program from AmeriCorps and Serve Wisconsin. The 414 Fellows work in Next Door classrooms with a focus on supporting literacy and language development for children ages zero to three. During the COVID-19 pandemic, the fellows supported students through virtual classroom lessons, recorded story time, handwritten motivational letters and book preparation and distribution with our Books for Kids program.

Next Step Clinic

The Next Step Clinic is part of Next Door’s Family Success Center. Run by community partners Mental America of Wisconsin and Marquette University, the clinic offers high quality mental health and developmental support services for both Next Door families and residents from underserved areas in the city. The clinic ran telehealth programming without any interruption to client services during the pandemic. The clinic also won the 2020 Nonprofit Collaboration of the Year Award from the BizTimes Nonprofit Excellence Awards program.

University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee

Next Door partners with University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee to support student assessments across our early childhood programming. Their research provides us with critical data to evaluate our learning experiences for children. University professors and graduate students participate in the research, which has included studies of literacy concepts like letter naming, vocabulary, words and rhyming, and social emotional learning through reading.
Improving our Learning Environments

One of the bright spots of 2020 came in the form of beautiful building renovations at Next Door! The renovations at our 29th Street campus were part of a fundraising campaign in honor of Next Door’s 50th Anniversary in 2019. Donors contributed $12 million toward this effort. We’re grateful for their generosity and the opportunity to enhance the learning environment for our students and families. While we will officially unveil these spaces in 2021, here’s a sneak peak.

Improving our Learning Environments

A renovation of our Books for Kids Library is underway to create a rainforest-themed space for our Read with Me program and book distribution. There will also be more comfortable seating for volunteers, better acoustics and new shelving.

Our Family Engagement Center will create a new place for parents to connect with Next Door staff in a casual, café-style environment. The space will offer both one-on-one meetings with members of our Family Services team as well as group meetings and trainings for parents.

A renovation to a second indoor play area is underway to create an interactive “Outer Space” experience for our preschool students. The space and equipment will encourage gross motor development through running, climbing and balancing, plus important social play.

A renovation to one of our indoor play areas is underway to create an interactive “Under the Sea” experience for our infants and toddlers. The space and equipment will help promote gross motor development through reaching, grasping, crawling, climbing, balancing and walking.

We’re celebrating the achievements of prominent African American figures in this colorful new tribute display. It features 12 profiles of history-making individuals from areas like politics, civil rights, law, space exploration and entertainment.

Celebrating our 50th Anniversary Donors!

Beginning with the dedicated individuals from Our Savior’s Lutheran Church, through decades of providing services to their neighborhood, to today as we serve nearly 1,400 families each year—community leadership and support has been the common thread.

We extend our gratitude to those who made generous gifts to our 50th Anniversary Campaign—to support multiple years of programming, to create a new learning environment at our 29th Street campus, and for our memorable milestone celebration. Thank you for such a heartwarming 50th Anniversary year!

We extend our gratitude to those who made generous gifts to our 50th Anniversary Campaign—to support multiple years of programming, to create a new learning environment at our 29th Street campus, and for our memorable milestone celebration. Thank you for such a heartwarming 50th Anniversary year!
Next Door’s Books for Kids program marked a major milestone in 2020 – 30 years of distributing free books to children in Milwaukee and helping them build their home libraries.

We thank everyone who has been a part of this program over three decades – program founders, book drive hosts, individual donors, Read with Me volunteers and book cleaners. You have all made an invaluable contribution to a child’s life through the magical gift of reading!

While 2020 was a challenging year, the community still came out in many ways to support Books for Kids. Below are some highlights.

Blocks for Books
Brook and Robin Lopez with the Milwaukee Bucks selected Next Door as the beneficiary of its Blocks for Books program. They donated $100 for every block they made during the season to help Next Door buy books for kids. They also read stories to our students during a special visit in February. The brothers’ generosity led to a matching gift for Next Door from the National Basketball Players Association Foundation. Together, their support totaled more than $110,000 for Books for Kids.

Online Read with Me
We had to suspend our in-person Read with Me program because of the COVID-19 pandemic. But that didn’t stop our volunteers and other community members from supporting our children. A total of 75 readers participated in our online Read with Me program, recording 80 stories to share with our children and families during the Saler at Home order in the spring and throughout the year.

Book Cleaning from Home
Due to COVID-19 safety precautions, we couldn’t welcome volunteers into our buildings to clean and repair the donated books we receive for Next Door’s Books for Kids program. A crew of our regular volunteers and their families helped us out from home through contact-free procedures to pick-up and drop-off books. They cleaned and repaired more than 5,000 books!

Summerfest Book Drive
On October 10th, Summerfest hosted a Drive-Up Donation event benefiting two local organizations including Next Door. Summerfest invited community members to donate new and gently-used books to our Books for Kids program in exchange for a free ticket to Summerfest 2021. We received a total of 2,685 books!

Virtual Walk for Children
To stay safe during this year’s Walk for Children, we hosted a virtual event May 18-22, 2020. We thank Harley-Davidson Foundation for serving as our Presenting Sponsor. With the community’s support, we far surpassed our goal of 8,130 miles walked and enjoyed a fun, virtual celebration for Next Door families at the end of the walk.

Emergency Needs Support
To help keep Next Door families stocked with the basics during the pandemic, community members and corporations purchased household supplies, food and personal hygiene products from our Amazon Wish List. We collected more than 6,100 items.

Community Shout-Outs
We want to give a special thanks to our local leaders, community partners and volunteers who offered special shout-outs to Next Door staff during our virtual all-staff meeting to kick off the 2020-2021 school year. We had 22 individuals record videos with sweet and inspiring messages.

Holiday Gift Giving
Community support during the holidays didn’t slow down with the pandemic. Thanks to local families, community organizations, congregations and corporations, we were able to ensure more than 900 Next Door students had gifts to open this holiday season!

Thanks To Our Community
We are so grateful for the outpouring of community generosity in 2020. During this unprecedented and challenging year, donors, volunteers and community members came out to support Next Door in so many important ways. Your outreach lifted our spirits and gave us hope during a trying time. We thank you all for your special contributions this year. Below is a look at some of your amazing support!

Tribute Donations

Many donors make gifts in honor or in memory of those they care about. These gifts are a meaningful way to both pay tribute to their loved ones and to help children get a strong start to life. We thank these donors for their special contributions to Next Door. The following gifts were made between January 1 and December 31, 2020.
We want to offer our sincere appreciation to Next Door’s generous donors. They represent individuals, families, community foundations and corporations. Their commitment to Next Door’s children helps us ensure our little learners build a strong foundation academically and emotionally and are prepared for success in school. These donors also help us support our student families with critical community resources to help them succeed. Here we recognize all new gifts and plugment installments made between January 1 and December 31, 2020.

Our Gratitude to Our Savior’s Lutheran Church

The story of Next Door began in 1969 at Our Savior’s Lutheran Church at 30th Street and Wisconsin Avenue in Milwaukee. A devoted group of parishioners and clergy saw a need to better serve their neighborhood and expanded an outreach program with numerous services for youth and young adults. They called the program “Next Door” because it was in a former parsonage building beside the church.

Over the next two decades, the organization served the needs of the surrounding neighborhood offering adult education, children and youth programs, a home visitation program, a drug and alcohol treatment program, the Hope Apartments, and many more programs. Next Door operated at this location for 22 years before moving to the 29th Street campus and focusing on early childhood education.
