

Meet the Family Advocate

About Me

Since I was 16 years old I have made it my business to work hand and hand with children and families. I took the initiative to study social work at the Illustrious Clark Atlanta University (CAU) and further my social work knowledge by obtaining my Master's degree in school social worker from Loyal University of Chicago. It helps me feel like I am contributing to human nature and doing a great life long work for students by advocating and closing the gap between social emotional feelings, outside narratives and education. Our motto at CAU is, "Find a way or Make one". I use that motto with families to give hope and let them know they have support from someone who is willing to search all avenues or build new initiatives to reach a conclusion.
